Sabbath-Keeping: Praying and Playing

Dear Friends,

This morning, I was sorting through my office looking for materials I want to take on study leave with me next week. (By the time you read this I will have gone and returned again.) As I do each year, not only do I gather materials for sermon planning, but I also scan the bookshelves in my office in search of books I want to take with me; some which are new to me, others which I've read before and want to revisit.

One of the books I just tossed in my bag is by Pastor Eugene Peterson, the same fellow who wrote The Message. The book I am taking with me is titled Working the Angles: The Shape of Pastoral Integrity. Nearly every pastor that I know has it on their short list of books, and it is one I've read several times and want to read again.

While Working the Angles is written primarily for pastors, intended to help us claim and reclaim our primary calling, it also offers good guidance for all of us in the Christian life.

As I was scanning the book, I happened to open it to a section where he writes about the importance of "keeping the Sabbath." He reminds us that while "keeping the Sabbath" is of high priority for us in our walk of faith, one of only Ten Commandments, the reason for keeping the Sabbath varies. In Exodus we are told that we are to keep the Sabbath because God kept the Sabbath on the seventh day of creation (Exodus 20:8-11). In Deuteronomy we are given a different reason as to why we should keep the Sabbath - because we are people, not slaves, not machines or work units or beasts of burden (Deuteronomy 5:15). As Peterson puts it, "our ancestors went 400 years without a vacation or a day off."

"The two Biblical reasons for Sabbath-keeping develop into parallel Sabbath activities of praying and playing. The Exodus reason directs us to the contemplation of God, which becomes prayer. The Deuteronomy reason directs us to social leisure, which becomes play. Praying and playing are deeply congruent with each other and John Calvin filled his Sabbath with both. His reputation for humorless austerity doesn't prepare us for the facts: he led his congregation in prayers in the morning and in the afternoon he went among the people of Geneva and played skittles. In our own time the poet W. H. Auden was alarmed that we are losing two of our most precious qualities, the ability to laugh heartily and the ability to pray, and he pleaded on behalf of a sane world for better prayer and better play." (Peterson, p. 49, 52.)

As we enter into the summer months that invite a welcomed change of pace and perhaps, some time away, I encourage you to "keep the Sabbath" wherever you go and whatever you do.

May God bless you with times of good prayer and good play.

See you in worship.

Meet Doug Conrads

Story by Paula Daum

Have you ever wondered who helps prepare the elements on communion Sunday? Meet Doug Conrads, a 36-year member of Tab who has volunteered to prepare communion for eleven years now, but that's not all he does at Tab.

The older of two children, Doug grew up in suburban Dayton. His family rarely attended church, but at the age of eight, after his grandfather passed away, he began to question his own mortality. His close neighborhood friend introduced him to Fairmont Presbyterian Church and showed him a Bible and a storybook he had earned for regular Sunday school attendance. Doug asked his parents if he could attend church and thus began his quest to learn more about Jesus. His fourth grade Sunday school teacher shared the Gospel, and Doug dedicated his life to Christ. He also earned his Bible and storybook that year which he displays in his home library.

Doug continued to be active at Fairmont through high school and eventually his own parents began attending church. They both accepted Christ as their Savior which gives him great comfort now that his parents have passed away. After high school, Doug attended Miami University near Cincinnati and became active in Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship where his faith continued to grow.

Baptized as an infant, he decided to also be baptized as an adult. He credits this event as a pivotal moment cementing his relationship with Christ and surrendering to His Lordship. With a degree in classical Greek and minors in Latin and classical studies, he considered pastoral work. However, he never felt called into the ministry and describes himself as “a behind-the-scenes kind of guy.” With a passion for books, research, organization, information technology and computers, he found his niche and headed to Indiana University to pursue his Master of Library Science.

So how did a young boy from the Dayton area end up in Indianapolis? Some might say “fate,” but Doug knows it was God. Taking a step of faith to leave his home in Dayton, he accepted a job at the Indiana State Library cataloging a vast array of materials in technical services. Last year he received a medallion for 40 years of service as a state employee, but he has no plans to retire.

For 36 years, Doug has volunteered for Indiana Voices by narrating books and publications for the visually handicapped. These digital recordings are sent all over the country, making Doug's voice familiar to many.

Doug heard about Tab through their radio program “Good News from Tab.” After attending Second Reformed Presbyterian Church for seven years, he missed singing in a choir and felt a change was in order. So, in 1982, Doug joined Tab and the choir.

In addition to preparing communion at Tab and singing in the choir, he plays in the bell choir, is part of the Prayer Team every Sunday at the 8:00a service, and serves on the Worship Committee, Community Life Committee and the Prayer Team subcommittee.

He never married and feels God has given him the gift of singleness, a true gift that has allowed him to dedicate his life to serving Christ. Asked what he loves most about Tab he replied, “It is the feeling of family. Tab is my family.” And Tab is blessed to have such a faithful brother in Christ!

Get to Know Mansa Samlafo

Story by Paula Daum

For the past several years, Tab Community Ministries has supported local Habitat for Humanity home builds. While some have been in the Mapleton-Fall Creek neighborhood, we have also supported builds outside our neighborhood in support of “Greater Community” within the city of Indianapolis.

This year, the Missions Committee is especially excited to announce a very special opportunity in our partnership with Habitat. Mansa Samlafo, a Tab member since 2014, is one of the recipients of a new Habitat home. Each year Habitat offers the opportunity for participation in building new homes at the Indiana State Fair. Mansa’s new home will be one of the homes under construction during this year’s fair, and then her home will be moved to its permanent location at 3724 North Kenwood.

In talking with Mansa, her excitement for this opportunity is evident. Mansa, a native of Ghana, moved to Indianapolis in June of 2012. Her fiancé, Robert Darku, remained behind in Ghana at that time. In 2013, Mansa’s cousin, Deborah Amo, also moved from Ghana to Indianapolis. The cousins have shared rental housing for these past five years.

In 2014, during a visit to Ghana, Mansa and Robert were married. Upon her return to Indianapolis, Mansa was delighted to learn that she was pregnant. While she had family support from Deborah during this time, Mansa also learned of a Goodwill program for first-time mothers called the Nurse-Family Partnership. Mansa was partnered with a registered nurse who assisted her throughout her pregnancy with a wide-variety of parenting support. Her daughter, Dromo, was born in July of 2015. In addition, Mansa was provided with guidance to help her find a new job that allowed for more effective use of her college education. You can see more of Mansa’s story in the Goodwill of Central and Southern Indiana Annual Report for 2017-2018 at https://www.goodwillindy.org/wp-content/uploads/2018/05/Annual-Report-2017-2018\_final.pdf

Mansa received notification in late 2017 that she would receive her new Habitat home this year. Homeowner participation in this progress is a rigorous commitment. She is required to provide 130 hours of work in helping build her own home and work on homes for other recipients. In addition, there are weekly classes for new homeowners, of which she is required to attend 10 classes. Mansa chuckles when she shares the new skills that she has learned along the way, such as how to “wrap a house,” install siding and even painting for the first time, which she loved!

During the month of July the Missions Committee will host sign-ups for Tab members to help build Mansa and Dromo’s new home. Volunteers will be provided with free tickets to the State Fair for their workdays. Watch for more information in the bulletin and the weekly email communications.

While this new home is the beginning of a wonderful new chapter for Mansa and Dromo, there is even better news. After a very long process, Robert Darku received his VISA and will be joining his family in Indianapolis in late August. We look forward to welcoming Robert to Indianapolis and to Tab!

Tab Fellowship Soccer

Story by Jennifer Wirt

In 2009, two men from Tab discussed their shared love of soccer and lamented that while there were numerous soccer leagues for children and teens, there weren't very many opportunities for adults to play. After that conversation, Pastor Oscar Clavel and Dave Kingsworthy decided to form an informal soccer group to provide adults a chance to enjoy a friendly soccer scrimmage each Sunday.

That group began with 10 or 12 Tab members and has since grown into what's now known as Tab Fellowship Soccer. The purpose of Tab Fellowship Soccer is to offer an opportunity for adults to have fellowship playing soccer in a Christian environment on a professional-caliber field.

On any given Sunday, roughly 35 men, women and older teens, gather on Tab's recreation field to play a friendly (but extremely competitive) game of soccer. What began as a 90-minute gathering is now three hours of warm-ups, scrimmages and full games overseen by commissioner Thomas Wirt under the umbrella of Tabernacle Recreation. While originally the group was made up primarily of Tab members, nowadays the group includes people from churches, schools and groups all over Indianapolis.

Over the years, exchange students from Africa, the Middle East and England have participated as well. Several current players are alumni of Tab Recreation's soccer program. A number of Tab members are regular participants as well. Participants have at times joined up to play on indoor soccer teams together during the off-season. Tab Fellowship Soccer also has a Facebook group with a lively message board, and the participants frequently bring friends to Tab on Sundays to expand the group.

Demand for playing time has grown to the extent that, in addition to adding a third hour of field time on Sundays, discussion has begun about extending to a second location to accommodate the growing number of players. What began as a small group of soccer fans looking for a place to have a casual pick-up game has grown into a well-established, well-loved fellowship opportunity for several dozen "friends of Tab."
